

Special Issue of Medical Decision Making on Shared Decision Making, Decision Aids, and Risk Communication

The Society for Medical Decision Making is pleased to announce that the September/October 2007 special issue of our journal, Medical Decision Making, is about the future of shared decision-making. The issue explores the subject from various directions, featuring new research articles, reviews of the state of the science, and other perspectives.

The articles in this special issue are being made available to interested parties free-of-charge through late-November. Click on any of the articles listed below to view the article in its entirety. (All of the articles are available electronically except for the editorials.)

In addition, SAGE Publications is offering free, online access to Medical Decision Making and other health-related journals through October 31, 2007. To access current and past issues of journals published by SAGE Publications, go to <https://online.sagepub.com/cgi/register?registration=FT72702> and sign-up for a free online trial.
